Dear Mr. Weisberg:

In reference to your request, the following is the result of examination of three Warren Sex-Sal Link birds which were brought to this laboratory by Mr. Thomas Grumbine on November 16, 1959. The only thing noted on our records is that these birds were too fat and that they were seven months old and from a pen of two-hundred and fifty birds. According to history which you gave us by phone several days previously, these birds were not producing fifty percent and none had died or appeared sick at that time. Our record does not show that any parasite or infectious diseases were observed at that date.

Very truly yours,

R. B. Shillinger
